

Lilit Garibyan, MD, PhD

Dr. Lilit Garibyan attended Harvard Medical School and completed her combined MD and PhD degree training in 2009. After medical school she did her residency in Dermatology at the prestigious Mass General Hospital/Harvard Combined Dermatology Program, and postdoctoral training in Dr. Rox Anderson's group at the Wellman Center for Photomedicine. She became board certified dermatologist and a fellow in American Academy of Dermatology in 2013. She is currently an Assistant Professor in Dermatology at Harvard Medical School and at Wellman Center for Photomedicine in Massachusetts General Hospital Department of Dermatology. Dr. Garibyan is a co-inventor on 5 provisional patents. She has published numerous articles in peer-reviewed journals and has been invited to give talks at national and international conferences.