

Søren Larsen, MSc

I work as a tech lead in close contact with people with skin diseases to understand their needs and motivations and to improve the treatment experience and usage for optimal outcomes. We build data collections devices to understand the relation between the individual user, medication, usage and outcome and design digital interventions around this understanding. Prior experience include automation of cancer diagnostics and point-of-care devices for haemophilia diagnostics.